Your October Art Walk

The best exhibits this month has to offer.

by Brad Mielke

If there is any recurring theme in New York's art world, it's that New York's art world is decidedly anti-theme. With galleries featuring eclectic mixes of art, artists, and media, this October has something for everyone. Join the Culture Club on its monthly art walk as Joonbug previews its top picks.

Painting: Ted Gahl (Dodge Gallery, 15 Rivington Street)

After previewing the Lower East Side art scene last month, we're excited to go back. In his new collection, Ted Gahl presents a series of paintings created in the wee hours. The Pratt graduate began creating the abstract pieces this spring, and opens the show on Thursday night. If you can't make cocktail hour, try the last Sunday of the month: the Lower East Side Visitor Center is hosting free gallery tours at 1pm.
